The Parlanti Case

Press Release

Is it possible, nowadays, to sign fraudulent medical reports, to be caught red-handed and still get away with it?

Doctors Troy Manchester, Jeff Bivens, Benjamin Fore and Neil L. Pugach demonstrate, with this "Medical Crimes' Timeline", how simple it may be to convince judicial and law enforcement authorities to close both eyes on chronological impossibilities, false reports and other miscellaneous fraudulent certifications.

"False exams regarding White". Doctors reported [to the Police - TN]

Doctor Jeff Bivens wrote in an August 16th, 2002, report that Rebecca White displayed bruises around the eyes, while the pictures of her taken by the police on the day of the report, July 18th, 2002, (twenty days after the alleged violence) do not show any hematomas.

"Rape? Perverse trials. The Parlanti Case" is the title of an accusatory book... [which] accuses the Police and the District Attorney's office of utilizing falsified evidence and of concealing elements of innocence. It blames numerous doctors - not only from California - for producing false medical reports that were contradictory to the pictures taken by the police and other medical reports.

The medical reports, which helped the American judges find Parlanti guilty, can be defined as real medical crimes, without the possibility of being disproved.

In addition, the doctors implicated in this incredible case of injustice have hidden themselves behind a mysterious but easily readable silence.

In fact, how is it possible that a United States professional accused by the Italian press of falsifying and exaggerating medical reports of such importance, could not feel the need to swiftly and decisively clarify his position and his actions?

Just as an example, there is a 2005 letter from neurologist Neil L. Pugach of Neurological Associates of Hampton Roads in Chesapeake, Virginia, in which Rebecca McKay White is declared permanently disabled due to brain damage caused by a beating.

But a few months prior, the neurologist himself performed an accurate examination on the patient, even with magnetic resonance imaging [MRI – TN], which culminated in "nothing remarkable".

But the contradictions are many more and can all be found in the documents officially recorded [by the Ventura DA's office - TN].

We have an ethical duty to denounce these specific crimes, beyond the trial irregularities; from a medical and legal point of view (a defendant's rights) these facts should have been examined in the court-room by an expert appointed by the judge, and this did not happen. Carlo Parlanti is the victim of falsities, omissions and commissions of a medical as well as judicial nature, in addition to the folly of a betrayed woman.

On the basis of such considerations, therefore, it is possible to state the absolute chronological incompatibility between the periorbital ecchymosis (“black eye”) detected by Dr. Bivens and the alleged trauma inflicted by Carlo Parlanti.

Such injuries, ascertained during the examination, necessarily must have an origin subsequent to the reported blows of June 29th, 2002.

In addition, no injuries were reported at the time of the police report on July 18th, 2002, as proved by the photographs taken at such time by the police detectives, nor at the time of the first medical examination performed by Dr. Manchester on July 22nd, 2002, whose report is silent in regards to such injuries.

In this open letter Dr. N. Pugach refers to a permanent and progressive cognitive deterioration, without possibility of improvement, of such seriousness as to impede any work-related activity. Such deficit is connected, by the doctor, to the domestic violence suffered by the patient, even though during previous visits the same [doctor - TN] had certified the absence of neurological alterations, not only on the basis of the clinical examination (“she is alert and fully oriented with intact attention and concentration language, and recent and remote recall”), but above all because of the neuro-imaging exams (cranial-encephalic MRI with and without contrast dye) performed, which resulted devoid of any notable pathologies. The same [doctor - TN] had simply diagnosed a chronic migraine with contemporary dysthyroidism (pathologies not connectable to the alleged violence). Moreover, we highlight that the doctor never prescribed any specific medication for the cognitive defects, but only for the migraine.
